The word before

God will descend from Heaven and punish the sinners; changes in the climate will destroy humanity; earthquakes, floods, and a rampage of the forces of nature will follow; a stray asteroid will destroy the Earth; the ozone layer will yield and cosmic radiation will destroy the life on the planet; the circumference of the Sun will increase and do the same; a super galloping ice age is on its way with temperatures down to -100°C ; Earth's magnetic poles are shifting; the planet will stop rotating for a day or two and then start turning in the opposite direction; the Nibiru or the Aretu will change its path and collide with the Earth; extraterrestrials are coming with evil intentions; the Earth is in the middle of a spiritual war between the forces of good and evil; we are moving into a higher vibration of existence – the good ones will go through the ascension process and the bad ones will die; the Mayan calendar ends on December 21, 2012 and the existence of our world ends along with it...

Or, simply, nothing will happen? At least nothing more significant than what is happening every day, month or year?

I have to admit that I have not read even a tenth of what is nowadays offered about 'the end of the world'. I, also, have been intentionally avoiding that subject when asked about it during my lectures or in public correspondence. I did not want to stir up the fire until I was able to offer a complete explanation and, what is more important, a possible solution.

However, time was passing by and the infamous year 2012 was looming closer and that was not happening. I already thought nothing was going to happen. After all, if it is about external dangers, there is nothing we can do about it, anyway. If it is about an inner transformation – I have already been working on it for several decades, helping people to better understand their life and their place in it, as well as to develop their own potential and correct the mistakes that we as individuals and as mankind have been making. So, for a long time now, I have been investing my entire life into a possible solution for the spiritual and life crises in which we have found ourselves.

I have slowly come to peace with the fact that this is enough and that there is nothing more I can do to contribute to a better future.

And then I found Worlds Splitting Apart!

Well, I did not actually find it, but...

With time, I have become very skilled in describing complex terms in a simple way, but this is a challenge even for me! How to explain something that is so unusual as Worlds Splitting Apart?

It would be so simple if it were about an old, dusty book found in an equally dusty attic. Or, it would be very interesting if I had received information about the existence of a prophetic text and went across the world to pursue it and, finally, after many adventures, found it in an exotic country. In this latter case, I could write a powerful novel after publication of which many would wonder if it was true or not. The text itself could eventually be destroyed, or simply hidden. There are many ways to clothe the message in drama and action.

However, none of this actually happened. Still, what did happen is in a way more interesting than the journey, searching and finding in a material world. There is no prophecy, text or book called Worlds Splitting Apart. Or there is, but it is the one I wrote with my own fingers and the one you are, in this way or another, holding in your hands, in a paper or electronic form.

Still, as much as I think about the way it came to be, the most accurate statement, which constantly springs to my mind, is – I found it!

And be it so, I have to answer two questions: Where did I find it and how? This is where things begin to get quite complicated. To understand or at least roughly understand my answer, you will have to read the entire text of Worlds Splitting Apart. At this moment, I have no other choice but to simply throw it at you, with a hope that it will not confuse you so much to give up on further reading. Thus, Worlds Splitting Apart was found in a place between them – in a reality which the text itself will call multidimensional.

In regards to the way it was 'found', it is obvious that it took some way to 'get' to that place. 'Getting' is in quotation marks because the usual terms that refer to space and time are not valid there. Therefore, everything I could possibly say about it is just a close description. An attempt to explain this experience to somebody who has not had it is very risky and almost always inaccurate. Once again, the very text of Worlds Splitting Apart will come to my aid, since in its introductory chapters it describes the so-called 'higher states of consciousness'. I believe that everything will be much clearer afterwards. Or, it will at least be a little bit clearer, which should be enough for understanding the text further on.

One other important thing: I was not by myself when I found Worlds Splitting Apart! I had ardent support... of other people. Even though, as you will soon discover, this 'other' is a conditional term and it refers merely to a point of view of one world. From a multidimensional point of view, the situation is very different. What it is like – will again be revealed by the text itself.

For now, it is accurate to say that I was not alone. Worlds Splitting Apart is composed of various parts offered by different personalities and then found in the multidimensional reality of each one of them. In that sense, the very text is multidimensional and in different worlds it appears in different forms, not just in yours.

So I dared to offer you a part of the answer for which I am aware it could cause more confusion than clarification. Everything else – and that presumes details about explanations of terms such as multidimensionality, various worlds, ‘other’ personalities – is found in the text itself.

However, I want to be absolutely clear about the following: I have not received a special task to publish this text from anyone. The ideas in this book were not dictated, planted in mind, transmitted or intruded. They are a result of my direct experience, as unusual as it is. It is true that I have had experiences and ‘meetings’ during which I was given lessons. But, these lessons have always been given in a way that did not leave any doubt in my personal responsibility for these cognitions. There have never been any intrusions. I always had to find my own way to make conclusions. Some of these ‘meetings’ with my teachers have already been described and many of you have gotten to know me through that.

If it were not for these previous experiences, the ‘finding’ of Worlds Splitting Apart would not be possible.

While reading Worlds Splitting Apart, it might seem to you that this book is also joining with the general atmosphere of ‘predictions and assumptions’. That, of course, is not so.

Most of what you can come across and what is related to the forthcoming period seems like an exaggeration and causes fear or, even worse, dismissing and neglecting a need for any kind of action.

Fear is bad since it worsens a situation. But, in a certain way, it is what can lead to new awareness. Neglecting is even worse, because it makes sure that events proceed according to a scenario which we have no influence on – we become string puppets and unconscious actors in a play with no happy ending.

Regarding the possible future events, it will not surprise you if I say that each one of those scenarios could happen. The possibility for anything always exists, even though chances may vary. Still, if someone would say to you that each one of those scenarios is really going to happen, that would be something else, wouldn't it?

Does Worlds Splitting Apart deal with that? That everything what has been talked about is really going to happen?

No, not in the usual sense of the word, but in some way – yes!

The meaning of these puzzling sentences will soon be explained. Get ready for unusual ideas. You might have already heard some of them, and you might have pondered upon some of them, but I presume that in its entirety the explanation of the worlds splitting apart is going to be one of the strangest and maybe even most complex theories you know.

Regardless of that, I am convinced that most of the readers will accept its possibility with ease. Well, times are changing. Twenty years ago something like this would be impossible. It would have elicited too much suspiciousness, so it was senseless and counterproductive to talk in such a way. Even today, similar reactions will appear, but not to such an extent. There is a critical mass of people (at least I hope there is) that will understand what this is about. The question is whether this information is going to reach them and whether it will reach them in time.

A mitigating circumstance is that at this moment there are a lot of people who are working on spreading similar ideas. Their ways of working may differ, as well as the theoretical basis of their activities. It is quite possible that some of them speak of theories that are different, and in some parts maybe even opposite, to what you are going to read in this book. However, if their final message corresponds – then we can say that all of them are on the same side.

Another mitigating circumstance is a large number of those who use methods of intimidation while speaking about the time of changes. They are trying to implant anger in us towards some hidden enemies (conspiracy theories) or fear of God's anger (religious fanatics). There are also those who are with deliberate exaggeration creating doubt in everything that appears on this subject, as well as those who have become victims of their mental condition.

I do not doubt that some will assign this book to one of the last two categories! All of us who participated in finding Worlds Splitting Apart are absolutely aware of this. It would not be the first time that we get accused and slandered. But, it does not matter. After all, Worlds Splitting Apart is not meant for them, but for those who will understand. Since there is no more time for too many discussions, the only thing that is important is the amount of people who will change their lives in a way that enables positive outcome, regardless of the number of those who will be suspicious or even negative towards what is written here.

The book Worlds Splitting Apart talks about a time that has started. It is pointless to talk about it as something that is still ahead of us. No, the time of changes has already begun and we are already in it. We are, indeed, at its beginning, but the situation has developed past the point of no return. The world will change. Or, to be more accurate and in accordance with the claims of this book – worlds will change!

To be able to understand how and on which level that is going to happen, Worlds Splitting Apart is going to take you through several unusual ideas related to spiritual knowledge, or the knowledge about the development of consciousness. It would be excellent to corroborate this knowledge with cognitions of contemporary physics. Text alone does not do that, but I believe such comparison would be very interesting.

Worlds Splitting Apart deals with the way our reality gets created, as well as with the role that our state of consciousness plays in it. It explains the term of higher states of consciousness and the changes in experiencing the world at the moment in which the usual state of consciousness lifts up to a new level. The acceptance of unusual ideas such as parallel lives and multidimensional personal reality will be needed to understand this situation.

Some space is devoted to explain the reasons for our current being in this sensitive time of social polarisation. These reasons are historical and they reach to the time around ten thousand years ago, or to the time five thousand years ago when final foundations of our civilisation were laid. At the same time, these reasons are also cosmic; they are connected to cosmic rhythms, which also point to a period of changes.

All this is just a basis for understanding Worlds Splitting Apart! I believe, however, that these complex ideas are still presented in a simple and comprehensible way and that they will manage to show an unfamiliar reality and its influence on our immediate future even to those facing them for the first time.

I would like you to read Worlds Splitting Apart in a neutral way, as much as possible. As I have already explained (at least partially), there were more personalities involved in the process of its 'finding'. For this reason, text is written in plural, thus pointing our collective opinion.

That entire process, when tried to be presented from a point of view of one world, can be pretty confusing. Its additional interesting feature is belonging to multidimensionality. This means you will come upon parts that will be mysterious and unknown to you. There will not be many such parts, since we tried to reduce them to a minimum and concentrate on common elements. Still, here and there, you will come across explanations and comments placed in footnotes. These comments refer strictly to our world.

Regarding my own contribution, I conveyed what I know and if it contains mistakes, they are only mine. It is possible that I misunderstood some of the details – finally, you will see yourself, the human mind has still not risen to the comprehension of complete reality. Not only do we have tendencies towards limiting, but also we are limited by our own ideas on what reality really is. Writing (or speaking) about it represents difficulty. I hope I have risen to this challenge and will make your reading and comprehension easier.

Worlds Splitting Apart, which is according to our measurement of time expected between years 2012 and 2021, does not offer just more information or just one more theory. If it were just about that, it would have never appeared. What is actually going to happen during that period depends on us. This text appeared for a clear need to stop this process, if at all possible. If that is not the case or if it is already too late, then its intention is to enable as many people as possible to find themselves in right universe – the one they would choose if given the chance.

I wish us all the depth of understanding, purity of heart, strength and boldness in actions, as well as clear light of love that will lead us through what might be the most sensitive period in the history of mankind.

Worlds Splitting Apart

At the very beginning we shall shortly describe our potential immediate future. To be able to fully comprehend what it is about, and especially to be able to understand the mechanism that lies behind it, you will have to read the entire book. We honestly hope it will not be difficult for you, but rather the opposite – it will draw your attention.

First of all, you need to know that the point of this book is to stop the process of splitting apart of the worlds. No one can do it alone, but we could manage it together. It is our duty to say that our chances for success are relatively small. A lot of things would have to change in practically every area of life for a number of individuals. We do not even know if that is possible – but we are hoping for the best.

Regarding the prevention of the splitting apart of the worlds, as well as the actions that help us to ensure our personal choice of the world in which we will live, we shall come back to it at the end of this book. Finally, it is the point of this book, its purpose.

What is implied by the term of the splitting apart of the worlds?

In short and simple words, we are at the beginning of the era in which one part of mankind is going to decide to change its own universe and the other part will not be able to make such a change.

Up until now, a pure will for change, strong desire and even numerous actions leading in that direction were not enough to make this change manifest in a material way aside from sporadic manifestations for some individuals and very small groups of people.

Spiritual laws, which state that the world is the way we are, have always been in force and always will be. The universe in which we live, our own reality, is a reflection of what we are.

This applies to us as individuals, taking into account that our individual reality needs to fit into the collective reality. Still, if you have enough personal strength, within given boundaries you can create a comfortable and happy place where you and the ones closest to you can spend your lives.

However, when attention shifts onto a common global level, the situation gets more complex. The rule that says that the universe is our own reflection is still valid, but now there are a lot of people involved in this story¹. Our world, the universe in which we live, is a reflection of our inner state, our consciousness.

The polarisation that we are witnessing – and which some symbolically, and sometimes even literally, identify with the war between the forces of good and evil – will also have to manifest on a material level. A lot of people have already begun to create a new reality, new universe. But, there an equally large number of those who do not do that, yet strongly cling to the old, dangerous principles of exploitation, hierarchy, manipulation, predominance and most of all – fear.

The forces whose strength is based on fear, from economical and political to social, are extremely powerful and will not voluntarily give up the power they possess. We are not referring to organised entities, states, religions, ideologies or some specific groups of people, or anything that would indicate a conspiracy theory, but we are rather referring to the story – paradigm – that is behind certain actions,

1 We need to make a remark here that it would be more accurate to say 'living conscious beings' and not just 'people'. But, since we as people have the problem, and this book is actually addressing people, we shall stay in those limits. However, just to be noted, we do not give people some special status versus other living beings – moreover, the change, which we are talking about, will certainly involve redetermination of the human status and its change with regard to other living beings.

organisations and the entire system. Even if you (re)move certain persons or organisations, this story will, as long as it exists, fill empty spaces in its own system with other persons or groups.

Fortunately, underneath the surface of public events and sometimes, rarely, even above it, a different story arises. It is getting stronger and soon it will not be able to stay unnoticed. There are more and more people who consciously desire to establish their lives based on love and cooperation. They, themselves, would be capable of that, but the system in which they live does not allow it. Some of them fight for change using acceptable social means, such as politics, humanitarian organisations and education. However, most of them realise their powerlessness – whatever they do, it seems that the problem is just getting bigger and bigger due to the underlying paradigm which does not change.

The 'conflict' between the new (spiritual) paradigm and an old story, in which economy, politics and religion are joint participants, will not represent a revolution. The revolution of any kind would just change the cast in an old, already chewed up play of human stupidity.

Something more honest and thorough is going to happen, which will at the same time be striking and actually completely incomprehensible to members of the old world. Subordinates, that is, the ones oppressed by the old paradigm, will not even be able to see what happened!

Supported by cosmic rhythms (on which we will talk later), polarisation of the old and the new under the principals of the law of "creating the world as an image of one's own being" will lead to the worlds splitting apart! Literally, what has been joined in one universe for thousands of years will now split apart and become two!

Some people will stay in one of them, some in the other.

The line of splitting will not represent adherence to a particular religion, belief, politics, geographical location or some other such trivia. The line of splitting will be drawn where nobody can reach but you – deep in your heart, in your own consciousness.

Drawing No. 1

We can imagine the surprise on faces of many who will read these lines. We already hear numerous questions. "Are you serious? What do you mean – two planets of Earth will be created? And some will stay on one and the rest on the other? How will this choice be made? How will we experience that transition, that 'splitting apart'? When exactly will that happen? What mechanism and what laws are behind such a thing?"

Also, of course, there are many other questions raised from various points of view – from contemptuous rejection and healthy curiosity to excitement because someone systematically described an intuitive feeling shared by many throughout the world.

We intend to answer all these questions in the further course of the book. For a starter, we will make it short and in due order.

Yes, we are very seriously laying out a theory that will be incomprehensible to many. No, we are not doing it for them, but for the others who are open enough to at least think about it. Regarding the 'two Earths' coming into existence, we shall soon explain that they already exist, and that there are not just two of them, but many! In order to understand this, we shall have to accept the terms of parallel and multidimensional realities. We are at the point of splitting apart and the truth is that some will decide to stay in the old reality and some will choose the new one.

This choice will not be made by someone from the outside, especially not by an organisation or a group of people, and not even by God or a God's prophet. You are the only one who can make this choice for yourself. The experience of 'splitting apart' (we emphasise again, it would be better if the splitting does not occur, even though chances for this are small) will for some be conscious, but for many others it will be completely unconscious. It depends on something called 'integrity of multidimensional personalities' and it will be explained in the following chapters. Regarding the timing, the subtitle of this book are years between 2012 and 2021. We consider that it is more probable that this process will have an early start.

Regarding the mechanism and the laws behind this phenomenon... Well, now, continue – the entire book is about that!

However, before going further, we hope that you have not forgotten to ask: "What can I do about that?" This book will also answer this question, which is, actually, the most important one. The reason for its appearance is not to amuse you. Moreover, it will probably attract a considerable amount of contempt and rejection. Its purpose is to convey the information to those who are ready for it. It might contribute to preventing the splitting apart from happening, but it might only help some individuals to choose the life in the new world, free of old, fear-based principles. The actions that will be advised to you are good for both. They are actually good for YOUR LIFE and you cannot go wrong with them, no matter how striking the theory of the worlds splitting apart might be.
